Jefferson Grand Jury Delving Deeply Into Conditions There

PAIR OF CONVICTS REPORTED KILLED

Atrocities There May Be Worse Than Those In Flat Top Mine

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 21.—The Jefferson County grand jury is delving deeply into allegations that atrocities at Banner convict mines, this county, surpassed anything Flat Top ever knew.

Solicitor Jim Davis presented to the jury evidence that opened the way for an exhaustive inquiry. Direct charges that two white convicts were done to death under conditions "reeking with humanity" has been brought to the attention of the authorities.

Testimony thus far adduced indicates that straw bosses are responsible for inhuman treatment within the pit. All evidence at hand, authorities said, indicates that Warden C. W. Worley had been "fair" to the prisoners, but that he had no intimate knowledge of the "underground workings where the straw boss, trustees, rule with an iron hand."

It was this condition that brought condemnation of the system at Flat Top, which camp is under scrutiny of the prisoners. The Flat Top inquiry already has resulted in six indictments and is "far from complete," authorities said.

It was indicated that the entire convict system, insofar as Solicitor Davis' jurisdiction and authority allows, would be probed from top to bottom.

ALL OFFICERS MAY WORK FOR THE U. S.

New Plan Proposed To Check Bootlegging In The Nation

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 21.—Additions to the federal prohibition staffs of state, county and municipal officers, was made possible today under an executive order issued by President Coolidge.

This move, made at the request of Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, is expected by him to augment the federal dry forces greatly.

Prohibition officials plan to place the local officers on the federal staff, perhaps as dollar a year men, since they will be serving as federal officers in addition to their regular duties. While local officers in most states and cities are already co-operating with federal government, in the enforcement of prohibition, it was said at the treasury, today's action will cloth them with full federal authority and it is believed by Mr. Andrews to be a big step forward in the dry work.

How soon Mr. Andrews will take advantage of his authority and the exact extent of the scope to which he will put it has not been decided.

CULLMAN EXTENDED HAND OF WELCOME IN KIWANIS MEETING

Lynne, Fuller and Dowling Deliver Three Feature Talks

DOWLING PLEADS FOR THE KIDDIES

Musical Features Are Unusually Pleasing at Gathering

Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club was host Thursday evening to Cullman Kiwanis club in the second Inter-Club Relationship series.

Hon. S. A. Lynne, Dwight Fuller and Prof. H. G. Dowling, the latter two members of the Cullman club, were the principal speakers of the evening. Professor Dowling's address centering upon the activity of the Underprivileged Child program, sponsored by Kiwanis clubs.

Following report of the attendance committee, of which George D. Williamson, is chairman, Miss Dorothy Patterson delighted her hearers with two vocal selections, accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Curry.

S. A. Lynne assured the visiting contingent of the pleasure afforded the local club in playing host upon the occasion, saying: "I have no studied words to offer you, so I will have to content myself with telling you that we are glad to have you come here, to mingle with us. We are more than delighted to have you," he concluded. Dwight Fuller, past president of the Cullman club, in response said, "We are always glad to come to Albany-Decatur, it was you who instituted our club, your club has been the inspiration for much of our program. We have found that you are a splendid lot of fellows and we are glad to come here tonight and tell you so."

Russell Speake then gave a brief report of Kiwanis activities for the year.

A. A. Jones, president, then introduced Baxter Nash, chief of the Cullman unit who in turn introduced the members of the visiting club. Several numbers by the Ukulele Girls, Cullman quintet, were greatly enjoyed and appreciated. These young ladies pleased Kiwanians last year at Cullman and came here upon request of the local club.

Miss Marie Ballas displaying an unusual talent in recitation gave a reading, "When the folks is gone." She responded generously to encore.

Another number by Miss Dorothy Patterson opened the musical feature of the evening entertainment, the two organizations joining in the singing of Kiwanis songs.

Professor H. G. Dowling, who has addressed local audiences on two previous occasions, was never more forceful and convincing than in delivering his talk on the behalf of the Underprivileged Child program, a portion of the Kiwanis program which is regarded as an outstanding feature of club life. Professor Dowling fluently dealt with facts in his usual easy and entertaining manner which has won for him a place on every Kiwanis program when he is available. The meeting was adjourned at the conclusion of Professor Dowling's talk.

SCOTT, SANE, MUST FACE JURY AGAIN

No Precedent Is Found For Unusual Case In Chicago Court

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 21.—Russell Scott, convicted of murder and then sent to the prison for the insane, has been found sane and must face a jury again, with the gallows a possibility in the background.

Scott was convicted of the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, in a holdup four years ago. Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, disclosed today that a commission of state alienists, headed by Dr. Herman Adler, state criminologist, have found that Scott now is sane.

No precedent for Scott's case has been found, but under the procedure anticipated State Attorney Crowe will receive formal notification of the findings and the state's attorney then will apply for an order of the court discharging Scott from the Illinois penitentiary for the criminal insane at Chester and ordering him returned here for retrial.

Before Scott can be hanged, he must be found sane by a procedure similar to that by which he was found insane Superior Judge Joseph B. Davis declared today.

VETS WEND WAY TO NEW GLORIES

From Cushioned Seats Of Limousines They Receive Plaudits

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 21.—Thirty-two hundred Confederate veterans glorified figures of idealism, wended their way today to a new and greater glory.

These men had known victory before, as well as crushing defeat, but in all their lives they had not seen greater adulation than that bestowed by an admiring multitude.

From dawn to high noon and past, this last faded remnant of the proud Southern army looked out upon the cheering thousands from soft-cushioned motor cars. It was a feast for these old men.

As they were whirled between the walls of a canyon of humanity they received rewards, as one old soldier put it "sufficient to pay for all the suffering."

It was a vastly different march to that of the sixties, that these soldiers of Lee staged here today, indeed it was different from any parade in which they had previously participated at annual reunions.

It was a triumphal pageant, with the old soldier riding in state in balloon tired limousines, with never a bounce nor a bump. He rode in all the elegance that money and admirers would produce. The veterans protested against being cushioned and seated in this wise, but their sons and daughters, for once overruled their sires.

Some of the men of shorter stature had trouble seeing out from aristocratic products of the motor king—everytime a hand struck up "Dixie."

Some of the more active of the number, clamoring to very part of their conveyances, cut didoes like a gang of school kids.

DEPUTY WILEY AND MILLER WOUNDED; NEITHER SERIOUSLY

Warrant Reported To Have Been Issued For Ed Terry

DETAILS OF THE AFFAIR MEAGRE

Two Men Said To Have Gone To Home To See About Debt

Deputy Sheriff H. M. Wiley and a Mr. Miller, both of Hartsville, were shot and slightly wounded late Thursday in a shooting affray about six miles north of Moulton, according to information reaching here today.

Advices received by The Daily were to the effect that a warrant had been issued for Edward Terry, resident of the community in which the shooting occurred, and near whose home the shot was fired.

Neither Mr. Wiley nor Mr. Miller was seriously hurt, although both were given medical attention in Moulton Thursday afternoon.

Details of the affair were meagre, but, according to a report to The Daily from its Moulton correspondent, Deputy Wiley and Mr. Miller were said to have gone to the home of Terry to seek an adjustment of a financial account.

Mrs. Terry was said to have met the two men and informed them that Mr. Terry had gone on a hunting trip. The visitors then left and re-entered their automobile. About 100 yards from the house, there was the noise of an explosion and for a moment, it was stated, the occupants of the automobile believed one of their tires had blown out. It was found, however, that both had been struck by shots, which took effect in the neck or back of the head of the two men.

The shot was believed to have come from a clump of bushes. The men continued into Moulton and one shot was reported to have been taken from Wiley and six from Miller. The warrant later was sworn out, according to information received here, but Terry, this morning, had not been apprehended.

GOLDEN COCOON

The Golden Cocoon with Helene Chadwick is a picturization of this novel by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Gregory Cochran, prominent lawyer and politician, has rescued Molly Shannon, university student, when she plunged into the river, and, against the protests of his aristocratic mother, is sheltering her in their own home. The girl, not yet fully recovered from shock, is still dependent. She was heart-broken over the treachery of her fiancé, Stephen Reinfro, who has married the daughter of "rich old Jim Dillworth."

Exactly ten minutes later he rose with a business-like finality. He was not looking at Molly—little more than a dent now in the counterpane, her face deep in the pillows—but at the watch.

"There's one thing still," he said. "I want you to give me your word that for a week beginning now, ten-fifteen Thursday morning, you won't try to take advantage of Aunt Lindy's absence or her carelessness. She's old and apt to fall asleep. It's out of the question, of course, for me to stay, and I'd rather not complicate matters with nurses."

"It's not my fault I'm here, you know." This voice from the pillows was small, stifled, but obstinate.

"That's enough. And, incidentally," he smiled, "you did make me take that early-morning dip, didn't you? At all events, it by this time next Thursday you are still of the same mind. I promise you I shan't put a straw in your way. We'll do you give me your word."

She nodded just perceptibly—without taking her head out of the pillows.

"That's splendid," he said with satisfaction. "Ah, and here's Aunt

"Merry Greg ter see you, honey," she announced.

Lindy in the nick of time with your breakfast. I shouldn't call it a breakfast if it were mine," he added cheerfully, "but it may pass for one with you!"

"I don't want any breakfast."

"Of course you don't. That's not saying it will do you any harm, though. Oh, Aunt Lindy," he turned to the little old black woman who was just entering the door with a tray in her hands—"we seem to have spilled these powders here"—he indicated the pillow at his feet—"but perhaps it's just as well. I have an idea we shan't need any more."

CHAPTER XVII

On the following Thursday Molly sat near one of the windows of the room whose walls had bounded her life now for three weeks, staring out somberly at a white sector of graveled drive just visible through a tall planting of shrubbery. The first crisp hint of autumn was in the air and Aunt Lindy had wrapped her from throat to toe in an enormous blanket robe of blue, which threw into startling relief the whiteness of her skin and the darkened cornflower of her eyes. Out-of-doors, a subtle change was everywhere to be detected. A certain faintly tenebrous and spangled effect in the sunshine, in the air itself and in the tint of leaves, which were spinning and whirling and drifting wingedly downward.

She glanced at the clock on the mantel opposite. Twelve minutes after ten. She had given her word only until ten-fifteen. She leaned forward, rested her weight tentatively against the screen of the French window—three stories from the ground. It was secured only by a light hook at the bottom. He had trusted her, then.

At this juncture, Aunt Lindy, who had hobbled out of the room a few minutes earlier on one of her abrupt and flitting absences, threw open the door with a flourish. "Merry Greg ter see you, honey," she announced with all the pomp and ceremony of the king's chief crier.

Molly knew now who he was. That knowledge added the final drop—if one had been needed—to her bitterness and shame. He was the man who had given her her scholarship. How he must despise her. . . . That she should be accepting further kindness from him—hospitality, even—was intolerable. She could not bring herself to look at him, but went on staring dully out of the window.

He drew up a chair and sat down near her. "By the way, do you happen to know what morning it is?" he continued.

"Yes, it's Thursday and"—she glanced briefly at the clock—"ten-fifteen."

He laughed. "I didn't mean the day of the week. Do you know what day of the month it is?"

She shook her head indifferently. "It's the twenty-seventh of September."

When she showed no interest, he added, "The university opens on the first of October."

Molly made no comment on that. Instead—still without looking at him—she said abruptly, "I want you to give me back my promise."

There was a moment's hesitation, or perhaps it was only his usual deliberateness of manner. Finally, "That was what I wanted to talk to you about."

"You do give it back, then?"

When there was again a pause, she hurried on in the dull, insistent monotone: "I've thought it all over—my mother, the children, my scholarship—everything. But it's too dreadful. I can't—I haven't the courage. I haven't any courage at all—I haven't anything." She broke off and fixed her eyes on the white sector of driveway.

"Of course I give it back," he conceded after a time, "but the trouble is, suicides never settle anything."

"At least it can—rid me—of this." Face averted, she made a strengthless gesture of unutterable abhorrence toward herself.

"My poor child, you think you are hurt in your soul, don't you? All your life you've had it hammered into you that the soul can be defiled. The truth is, the soul is like flame—clean like flame. You can't smirch flame, can you?"

"I don't know. The flame in me has—gone out."

"If the tree is young and—full of sap," Cochran pointed out in his mildly argumentative fashion, "you can put it together and make it grow." He was silent a little.

Then he leaned forward, one big, firmly knit hand on either knee. "That's what I want you to let me do for you."

She shook her head. "You can't—nobody can."

"I'm not so sure. By your own account, you've thrown your life away, disclaimed it. How would it be if you sign it over to me—just chuck the responsibility, as you might say?"

"That's impossible," she said drearily. "One person can't take the responsibility for another."

"At least we could try it. You see, I have a deep, ingrained aversion to waste, to useless destruction."

"Let us suppose, just for argument, that I have taken charge—that I have decided you are to go back to school on Monday. As a matter of fact," he got to his feet with the effect of having arrived at a vital issue, "I've made the necessary arrangements at the dormitory for you already. That seems better under the circumstances than Mrs. Parker's."

"No—no"—Molly put out her hands as if to thrust the suggestion from her—"not that. I tell you I haven't the courage. Besides," her hands dropped in her lap, her head sank forward again, "I'm not—at. They wouldn't even take me if they knew."

"They don't know."

"At least they know about—Stephen. Oh, I can't—I can't face it. Don't ask me."

"There is such a thing as just accepting a situation. Once you've done that, it's the simplest matter in the world. You have only to live over it—clear of it—serene as a god above the storm you were talking about a while ago."

Molly lifted her head and looked at him—with the first gleam of interest she had shown—"That's the way you live, isn't it?" she said. "Serene as a god above a storm."

She repeated the words musingly. They had a pleasant, rhythmic sound. What was that other phrase she had liked? Oh yes, "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High."

They had the same feeling.

He laughed and glanced at his watch. "I do take things pretty much as they come," he confessed.

At this juncture there was a rap at the door. It opened and revealed—not Aunt Lindy—but the magnificent white-haired woman Molly had seen in the box.

BASIC INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS NOW ON THE UPGRADE

Better Than Average Is Steel Company Chief's Description

CONTINUATION OF PEACE FORESEEN

People Generally Are Economical, Sober and Contented

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 21—Basic industrial conditions in this country at the present time, taking into account all that could be truthfully said for and against, are very much better than the average and on the whole about as good as they have ever been, perhaps better. Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, said today in addressing the members of the Iron and steel institute. He is president of the institute.

"We are at peace with all the nation of the globe and this is likely to continue," he said. "Labor conditions are generally peaceful and quiet. Money is plentiful, the per-capita circulation is very large. Interest rates are low and every responsible, worthy applicant has no difficulty in obtaining capital for all legitimate purposes. The banks are well managed. The bankers are fair and accommodating and have the confidence of the general public."

"The people are at work. They are disposed to economize, they are, in the main, sober and law-abiding and not inclined toward extravagance. Although there are some striking exceptions manifest in some localities. As a rule wages are fair and reasonable though in certain lines high. The law of supply and demand sooner or later will bring these matters to a just and proper regulation."

ECZEMA

Dries right up!

If you just realized how easy it is to stop fiery, itching, burning eczema by simply building up the red-blood-cells in your blood with S. S. S., you wouldn't waste another minute trying to do it any other way.

That's the only way to relieve irritated, broken out skin of any sort. You lack rich, red blood. Impurities are in your system. The blood is so weak it can't fight back and overcome the enemy, so the impurities break out through the skin.

S. S. S. builds the blood back—builds millions of new red-blood-cells. Eczema dries right up. Bolls, pimples, blackheads, ugly blotches and irritating rashes all disappear.

Clear up your skin. Get S. S. S. All druggists sell it. The larger bottle is more economical.

JUNIOR CHAMBER SURPRISES BUSINESS PEOPLE WITH PROJECTS IN MIND

Following the meeting of the executive committee of the Benevolent Hospital campaign and the Albany-Decatur Junior Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, it was stated by some business men that they were astounded with the report of results now being gained by the junior organization. That is not unusual for many of the industrial plants with which the Junior organization has been in touch is considerably larger than the Junior Chamber had expected to locate, nevertheless the plants have been found and the Junior body must call upon the people of Albany-Decatur to respond so soon as negotiations move along to a more conclusive degree. The Junior organization has been working now for six months without financial support from the business contingent and the young men have indeed uncovered some industrial leads that will finally prove beneficial to the Twin Cities if the business men and other individuals of the cities realize just what a responsibility has been placed on their shoulders.

The matter of building cities is not child's play in the least, cities are built on the foundation of location, good will and money. We have the first two articles well in hand and we will soon be in need of the third. The Daily does not believe that the business men of the two cities will fail to recognize the duty that has been placed upon their shoulders. The Daily feels that they will respond to the fullest extent when the industrial giants are placed within their grasp. The time is coming soon and the desire to grow in this section will be tested, the business men and other individuals of the Twin Cities cannot be tried and found wanting. They never have, and there is no reason to assume that they will on these occasions. One good sized industry will take up a business lack, two additional industries will place us well within our title of the greater Muscle Shoals industrial location. The time is coming when we must answer ready.

CHAIRMAN ROGERS PLANS TO MAKE A TRIP HERE IN FUTURE

John A. Rogers, chairman of the Alabama state highway commission, pleasantly remembered here with the bridging of the Tennessee River and other road projects in North Alabama, expects to deliver a talk in these cities in the immediate future concerning the feasibility and advisability of the $75,000,000 good roads bond issue. Mr. Rogers has made this talk previously, on the occasion of the dedication of the Tennessee River bridge in which ceremony two states took part, yet Mr. Rogers has met considerable opposition from various sections of the Tennessee Valley since that memorable explanation made at the Princess theatre. Mr. Rogers comes here soon to explain the status of the bond issue and just what obligation it places upon the voters. The cities will be more than pleased to welcome him, but still more delighted to receive his explanation regarding Echols Hill and the paving of that portion of the Bee Line highway. Perhaps Mr. Rogers feels that the Bee Line highway will not be completed until the Tennessee River bridge is completed anyway, and is holding up on work on this section of highway until near the conclusion of that time but the fact remains that traffic going north and south of Albany-Decatur must meet this section of the highway and incidentally will carry the word to other sections that the worst section of the highway is located at Albany-Decatur. The Daily does not feel that this is in anyway good for Albany-Decatur, neither does it feel that the highway commission will feel overjoyed at knowing that the best highway in the state lacks a connecting link at Albany-Decatur.

The people living in the vicinity of Echols Hill have complained to city authorities of the condition of that stretch of roadway, the state declares that there are no funds available at the present time for the building of Echols Hill, what then is left to do? Shall the city go ahead and do the work, or will Mr. Rogers place an individual appeal before the people of Albany-Decatur telling them that he realizes the advantages of having Albany-Decatur's poorest road placed in shape? We need this thoroughfare as much or more than we need other thoroughfares in the county. It is a block to local trade and when Mr. Rogers realizes this fact we believe that something will be done to improve the condition. The Daily and the people residing in the vicinity of Echols Hill are not particularly interested upon whom the burden of proof lays in connection with the paving of the portion of roadway so that there might not be any deterrent in trade coming from the south, or traffic traveling from the north.

THE CHALLENGE TO ATHLETES IN COLLEGE LIFE

What right has an athlete to college life, what right has an athlete to absorb the interest of college life, what sphere of college activity is he most interested in, that is the question propounded by the Selma Times-Journal in saying that the athletically inclined are carrying away the honors of the day in college life, entering the scholastic phase seriously enough to effect the very life of academic curriculum. The following article is reproduced from the Selma paper:

The fast-growing and disproportionate interest which practically all colleges are showing in athletics to the incalculable detriment of the serious work of education is coming in for a great deal of condemnation and the school heads and executives are themselves being arraigned for this untoward situation and are being roundly censured for a complaisant attitude toward this fundamental evil.

Dr. Daniel L. Marsh who has just been inaugurated as president of Boston University, pays his respects to this unwholesome condition and senses it as the most pernicious tendency of modern collegiate life, demanding the thoughtful consideration of college authorities throughout the country.

Dr. Marsh's remarks apply with practically equal force to all the universities, not only in the United States but also in England. He administered a well-merited rebuke to "well-meaning and enthusiastic, but misguided alumni and other friends who, forgetful of the port to which their good ship, Alma Mater, is heading, dump in its path such rubbish as the pagan worship of physical efficiency; the idolization of men who may be inferior in every respect but brute force; the ambition to secure victory at any cost; high-salaried, super-organized, unreasonably specialized coaching systems; a reckless waste of money for football while the academic system starves; over-participation in sports by the few, and total neglect by the many, and a confusion in the minds of youth as to why they go to college at all."

More than a quarter of a century ago a thoughtful Englishman, William E. H. Lecky, pointed to the same evil. In "The Map of Life" he remarks: "It is not too much to say that among large sections of the students at our universities, and at a time when intellectual ambition ought to be most strong and when the acquisition of knowledge is most important, proficiency in cricket or boating or football is more prized than any intellectual achievement. I have heard a good judge, who had long been associated with English university life, express his opinion that during the last forty or fifty years the relative intellectual position of the upper and middle classes in England has been materially changed, owing to the disproportionate place which outdoor amusements have assumed in the life of the former. It is the impression of very competent judges that a genuine love, reverence and enthusiasm for intellectual things is less common among the young men of the present day than it was in the days of their fathers."

If that was true in 1899, it is still more so today. Dr. Marsh has rendered a service in thus boldly challenging the right of athletics to the place that it holds in college life.

Be that as it may, we do know that an athlete is not allowed to play for an institution until he has passed certain academic tests. We likewise realize that football paves the way for all other sports and that football coaches are the only coaches in the school who are looked up to in any degree or sense of superiority. There are many cases where the college athlete can show a better academic standing than the individual who goes in for dancing and bridge playing to while away his free portion of time. The athlete realizes that he must get his work done else he will be unable to play on the team. That goal is something all collegians look forward to, who are athletically inclined, it is then a stimulus to study. An athlete is often gazed upon by undergrads at college as an idol, his failure in studies will mean his fall, therefore he must stick in the front else give up his place of superiority.

Athletics have made colleges recognized throughout the nation, newspapers do not pick up students for their scholastic ability, therefore the school with a poor athletic entrant must suffer the humiliation of being kept out of print. The athletics of a school usually bring the student, it is not the scholastic routine, nor the social triumph, for the student knows little of this until he enters the institution.

From the standpoint of the public it is likely that athletics in college are viewed with certain misgivings for people on the outside, particularly those who do not follow the realms of sports, do not send sons to college to gain knowledge in their heels, the interest is in development of the brain. Take away the highly paid football individual and you will likely stunt the growth of all other athletics for football foots the bill. Track, baseball, basketball, crew, wrestling and a host of other minor sports are dependent solely upon football for maintenance, hence the payment of higher salaries to football coaches than to professors.

The building of the body we grant is not so important as the building of the brain, but the well balanced individual is the individual developed in all departments. Without a body in which he may house a splendid brain it is likely his health will fail at the time his brain is needed, college football makes a man of a sickly individual whether he makes the team or not. As for the other sports, were it not for football then the departments would not exist.

Athletics remain and will remain as one of the greatest forces of advertising colleges. Colleges heretofore unknown will suddenly blossom into newspaper headlines as leading contenders for championships, in the football world preferably. The following year there is an influx of students and the college name is made. Take athletics from the colleges and soon there would be few students housed in the colleges of the nation. College would again become the distinctive trainer, catering to the better classes and allowing the poor class of people to continue the way without the benefit of higher education. It hardly seems probable that colleges will serve their own knives with which they may sever their own throats. College is a business just as other classes of business, professors must live, institutions must survive. It is dependent upon athletics that college maintains popularity and publicity.

bare head, walks in front, close behind her a thin white horse, on the horse a fat male Indian with heavy sombrero on his thick hair.

Asked why he, instead of his wife wore the hat, he would say, "Hot sun, bad for my head." Asked why he and not his wife rode the horse, he would explain that squaws walk and consider his answer sufficient.

THAT'S why in this land the white man tells the Indian where he may live, what acres he may have.

Children don't amount to much when the father does not respect their mother. And children, that amount to little must be the servants of others.

FRED HARVEY's thoughtful steward, Pietro Lombardi, looks at the Indian family and, philosophically quotes Dante "Se Duro Salire le Scale piene di fango, per poi farne le altre, senza fango" which means that it is hard to climb the steps covered with mud, in order to reach those that are clean. "Sensa fango."

INDIANS and others that we call "inferior races" still on the lower muddy steps, will reach higher ground if diseases and vices of "superior" races do not kill them off. Meanwhile the white man should not boast too much about his part of the staircase, there is mud on it still.

NEWS of the world pours into the rushing train, through excellent newspapers published everywhere along the line, the Albuquerque Morning Journal, one of the best.

But in this wide land news from "civilization" seems not important. You read that Mr. Morgenthau, once ambassador to Turkey, looking with horror upon Kemal Pasha, "most brutal murderer," says Christian America should have no dealings with Turks that have murdered four million Christian Armenians. Kemal Pasha might reply, "Well, anyhow there are many Armenians left, about as many as there ever were. That's more than you Americans can say for your red Indians. You put them on lands that you consider worthless, and when oil is discovered there you kick the Indians out once more. Clean your staircase."

HERE coyotes do to the jack rabbits what Turks do to the Armenians. It is "the nature of the rabbit," two legged and four legged. The misfortune of the jack rabbits is that they are Jack Rabbits and of the Armenians that they are Armenians. A different kind of animal two legged or four legged, wouldn't let himself be killed so easily.

THE Southern Baptist convention is told by Dr. Hunt that he would stop beauty contests, card playing, late joy riding and exhibitions.

The doctor says "racing is the fastest growing business in the country. Last year five hundred million dollars were thrown away on it." He under-estimates the financial end. The bookmakers took in eight hundred millions.

SPEAKING of Louisville where 75,000 gathered to see the derby race, the indignant doctor said "that city tonight has more dissolute women, gamblers, bootleggers and criminals generally within its gates than any one city in America, drawn there by the derby."

That is only some of the mud on the staircase of our civilization.

THE bright sunshine out here in New Mexico, Arizona or California would soon dry that mud. You ought to see this whole country, and after seeing it you would worry less about bathing beauty shows, or the prize ring that gathers and spreads crime and disease.

All that is a small part of the United States, it touches few of the people.

GO WEST, by steamship through the Panama Canal, come back by the Southern Pacific through New Orleans.

Go west by the Northern Pacific, up to Seattle, Vancouver, and down through Oregon, California, then back by the Santa Fe, or take your car, your family and your tent, and go from coast to coast. Zigzagging north and south to your heart's content. You will find good hotels, clean auto camps, unlimited opportunity and kind hearted people anywhere.

Here in the west ask of a man anything that he can do and his answer will be "you bet, I sure will."

THOUGHT

OF THE WEEK

By J. A. West

THOUGHT FOR WEEK OUR GOOD INTENTIONS

The things which we do, and not what we mean to do, are the things which count big in the sum total of life. We are inspired to do something worth while, but procrastinate, and the inspiration withers and goes away, and we are the poorer for having failed to take advantage of the inspired thought.

We search in vain for the faculty of contentment, when it might be found in the closet of a neighbor whom adversity had overtaken, or in a sick friend's room whom we had failed to visit.

We look out upon the broad expanse of the present, and reason that the future holds boundless possibilities and opportunities, but the fact is, the present is the only opportunity which is safely our own, and there is no guarantee that we may be workmen, busy with the things of life out in the boundless and unexplored future.

If as individuals we fail to use the present and enjoy its passing days and hours, peering out into the future, trying to appease our conscience and inward monitor, that when the auspicious time arrives sometime out in the future, we will do thus and so, we foil the good intentions which came to us, and cheat ourselves out of the legacy which would surely have been within the grasp if we had but acted upon the good impulse which came and knocked for admission.

The reason that childhood holds in store throughout the years such golden memories and so many sunshiny places along its way, is that childhood enjoys the present to its fullness, and drinks in the sweetness from the perfume laden flowers all along its path leaving to the future to care for itself when the span of years takes them to its phantom walkways which are never reached. It is the present, and solely the present in which the play days and work days of life are to be done; there is no guarantee anywhere about the future, it merges into the present, and the past and present are the only two positives in which the activities of life are housed. One is behind us, the other is now.

PATTERSON GIVES FIGURES TO SHOW ROAD REVENUE SOURCES

GADSDEN, May 21.—A. G. Patterson, president, Alabama Public Service Commission, spoke before the annual convention of the Travelers Protective association in Gadsden on the subject of "Good Roads."

He declared that the traveling men of Alabama were pioneers in advocating good roads and that they were a most potent factor in passing the $25,000,000 bond issue in 1920 and 1922.

He stated that he had also advocated the $25,000,000 bond issue because at that time the consumption of gasoline in the state was so small that funds for road construction could not be equitably obtained without a bond issue.

The speaker referred to the propaganda now being put out by the chairman of the state highway commission in which it is declared that unless the present administration is endorsed, and the $75,000,000 voted, the building of good roads in Alabama will stop. "It is not only erroneous and deceptive but is a reflection upon the intelligence of the citizens of the State."

Mr. Patterson warned the traveling men to analyze this propaganda thoroughly before accepting it as true. He expressed the opinion that the good road sentiment in Alabama was as strong as ever but declared that safe and sane financial provision for road funds should be provided.

Mr. Patterson endorsed the amendment offered to the resolution by Mr. Birchfield, of Tuscaloosa, which was as follows: "If sufficient funds cannot be provided from reasonable gas tax, federal aid auto tag tax, the use of convicts on the public roads and other equitable sources of revenue to constitute an adequate road building program then we favor an additional bond issue of only such an amount as can be wisely spent within four years. We favor letting the people pass upon the road building program every four years."

For the information of the convention and the resolutions committee, Mr. Patterson offered the following tabulation of figures:

For 1925 the two cent gas tax produced $2,150,000 divided among 67 counties paid each $32,100. For 1926 the two cent gas tax will produce $2,561,000 or $40,000 for each county, estimating available revenue which can be realized during the four years 1927 to 1930 inclusive.

Mr. Patterson presented the following tabulation: The increase in gasoline tax indicated for the year 1926 over 1925 is $421,120, making a total from two cent gas tax of $2,561,000. A three-cent gas tax is proposed by the $75,000,000 bond advocates would produce for 1926 $3,841,000. For 1927 estimating 15 per cent increase the three-cent gas tax would produce $4,417,150. Add to this $1,500,000 federal aid, $1,000,000 for use of convicts on public roads, $500,000 miscellaneous receipts, making a total for 1927 of $7,317,150, add to this an annual increase in gas tax due to increased consumption estimated at 15 per cent annually which is less than the average increase for the past 5 years and we have $647,572 which will produce for the year 1928 the sum of $7,964,722. For the year 1929 the sum of $8,612,294 and for the year 1930 the sum of $9,259,864.

A total for the four year 1927-1930 inclusive of $30,154,032. This compilation does not include the annual auto tag tax which should be used for road maintenance and to pay interest and sinking fund for the $25,000,000 bond issue. This fund for the year 1923 was $1,595,790, 1924 was $1,862,728, 1925 $2,198,507, an annual increase of $301,358, or 18 per cent.

Mr. Patterson promised to furnish for the information of the voters additional facts and figures relating to financing a road building program without issuing bonds from time to time during the campaign.

Colleges, Preps And High Schools Entered For Birmingham Run Saturday

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM Ala., May 21—Final arrangements are complete for the staging of the Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships in Munger Bowl Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The meet is to be held under the auspices of the B. A. C. and Birmingham-Southern College and is the first time it has ever been held in Birmingham.

In order to get the meet in Birmingham over Atlanta's bid, B. A. C. and Birmingham-Southern officials had to guarantee an attendance of approximately 2,500 people. While promoters at present predict a much larger crowd than this, a concentrated drive to fill the concrete stands in Munger Bowl is being made in order to insure the return of the championships to Birmingham. The meet is the largest A. A. U. track competition in this section of the country.

Officials have been named and a schedule outlined for running off the events. The first events of the meet will get under way at 2:30 o'clock with the high hurdlers taking their first trials and the pole vaulters starting their leaping. The shot putting event will start at 2:30 also. The final event is scheduled for 5:30 o'clock. Honorary referees for the meet have been named as follows: Dr. Guy E. Snavely, president of Birmingham-Southern College; Murray Hulbert, president of A. A. U. and Victor H. Hanson, publisher of the Birmingham News.

Al Doonan, veteran track and field expert of Atlanta, has been appointed referee. Doonan is one of the most prominent figures in Southern amateur athletics.

Coach William Alexander, of Georgia Tech, has been named starter with H. M. Starnes of Birmingham, who has been clerk of course in most of the leading Southern track meets, will serve in that capacity at the Southeastern.

H. J. Stegeman, athletic director at Georgia; Eugene Munger, Borden Burr, Herbert Warren, "Red" Harris and Crawford Johnson, Jr., have been appointed finish judges.

One hundred and four athletes have been entered in the senior events from 10 organizations while 10 high schools have entered teams in the prep department.

--The-- CIRCULATOR Writes Home

Billboards observed while touring Morgan County.

Not many years ago farmers planted and harvested by the signs of the zodiac. Now they are farming right by the signs which line out supposed highways. Below are a few of the many enlightening signs which obstruct the view of the passing highwayman in our county.

"Everything for dad and son." This is a good sign and affords one something to think about until he has crossed two more trenches. It shows that the old man and his young squirt are coming into recognition. While as yet no day has been set aside to do honor to "Dad and Son," this store has the right idea. No doubt it carries in stock everything from fishbait to snakebite medicine. Or maybe their line is literature which mother and daughter cannot buy but who are first to read it when it is brought home.

"No crap shooting without license." This is perhaps one of the best movements inaugurated in years. The scarcity of crap in this section has been very marked in recent years and no doubt is attributable to the indiscriminate and unsportsmanlike manner of shooting the young crap, often before they are old enough to leave their nests. It is said that some irresponsible people will even destroy them because they do not roll seven or eleven. We believe if this law were rigidly enforced for a few years it could then be repealed and that game of this kind would be so plentiful that the woods would be filled with crap shooters.

"We know our stuff." So does your old bootlegger. No doubt both sell for that same reason.

"The Bee Hive Store." This is an old billboard advertisement that was most apt. We got stung everytime we entered one.

"Slow! Danger Ahead!" The State Highway department absolutely refuses to be responsible for vehicles lost on their highways. As a further precaution it should build a fence across the Danville pike just this side of Neel.

Of course the above are only a few of the beautiful signs erected by enterprising business men to hide the ugliness of the dogwood and honeysuckle when they are in bloom. These signs also afford good targets for rock throwers. Too, there was a time when such things were thought to have had some advertising merit but that was in the day of the ox-wagon and hoop skirts. They are built now for their artistic beauty alone.

FARM DEMONSTRATION NOTES

FARM HOMES SHOULD HAVE RUNNING WATER

Mr. M. A. Barnes, specialist from Auburn, was in the county recently working with Mr. Ford and Miss Hamilton in connection with home improvement work in the county. Several homes were visited in the interest of home water systems.

One of the greatest tasks which confronts Alabama farm women today is carrying water into and out of the house. The time spent in this work will average at least seven hours each week. If she received 10 cents a per hour she would earn enough in seven and one-half years to buy a complete water system, including a gasoline engine, pump, tank, bath room equipment, hot water tank, and septic tank, costing in the neighborhood of $275.00.

A water system installed can be operated for a year with very little attention. Windmills can be operated at an expense of less than $1.00 per year, and a hydraulic ram can be operated even cheaper than a windmill. The greatest drawback in installing a water system is the initial cost. If a farmer will figure the labor spent in drawing water for livestock alone will pay for the system in less than ten years, or the time his wife spends in carrying water into and out of the kitchen will pay for it in seven and one-half years, he will realize that a water system pays a good dividend, in addition to untold pleasure his family will receive from it.

Ask your county agent or home demonstration agent for full information on water systems. They will be glad to assist you, and if necessary have Mr. Barnes, specialist from Auburn, come and help you solve your problem.

MISS WILEY, BRIDE-ELECT AT A BREAKFAST PARTY

Miss Beulah Watson was hostess at a delightful breakfast party Tuesday morning honoring Miss Cleo Fay Wiley, bride-elect. The party clad in khaki met at the home of the hostess and hiked to Moss' Spring, a mile and one-half from town. On arriving there about sunrise they prepared and served their breakfast in real camp style.

Those who sat around the camp fire were: Misses Cleo Wiley, Clyde Tolleson, Merle Freeman, Sallye Hamilton, Florence Ford, of Russellville; Mesdames John W. Roberts and Lewis H. Houston, and the hostess.

The canning budget as arranged by Miss Pearl Jones, conservation specialist, is receiving much attention over the State. This is a new project and is hoped that each member of the women's clubs in our county will give it their careful consideration.

A NEW and BETTER GASOLINE

The New Low 400 End Point

A low end point, assured through the more accurate fractionating control of the gasoline runs, checked frequently by the volatility tests, leaving no heavy ends, promotes complete vaporization and burning of each cylinder charge.

Less Crankcase Dilution

—better cylinder lubrication, more perfect piston seal and greater mileage before the changing of crankcase oil becomes necessary.

The Low Initial Boiling Point

With the low boiling point, due to regulation of the still operations to retain the lighter fractions of the crude oil in the gasoline runs, the new Texaco provides a "high test" gasoline of greater volatility.

Easier Starting

—less load on the storage battery, and more power with below-normal engine temperature.

Anti-Knock Qualities

Successfully producing certain desirable aromatic and naphthene hydrocarbons in the final new Texaco, the Holmes-Manley Process produces an exceptional gasoline with combustion characteristics in the finished product which give it exceptional non-detonating qualities.

Smooth Engine Operation

—and more power, better hill work without retarded spark, and a quicker pick-up.

A Balanced Distillation Range

The distillation range, controlled by the Holmes-Manley proportioning of intermediate-boiling fractions, provides a volatile fuel with a combustion rate balanced to engine requirements. The new Texaco works best on a lean mixture.

Maximum Acceleration

—quicker pick-up and more power on the hills. The new Texaco takes the acceleration load.

The New Volatile Range

By shortening the distillation range, the new Texaco Gasoline provides a higher volatility, which gives the maximum acceleration with a leaner mixture while the engine is warming up.

Greater Mileage

—no unburned heavy ends, greater gasoline economy (more air, less gas), and lower cost per mile.

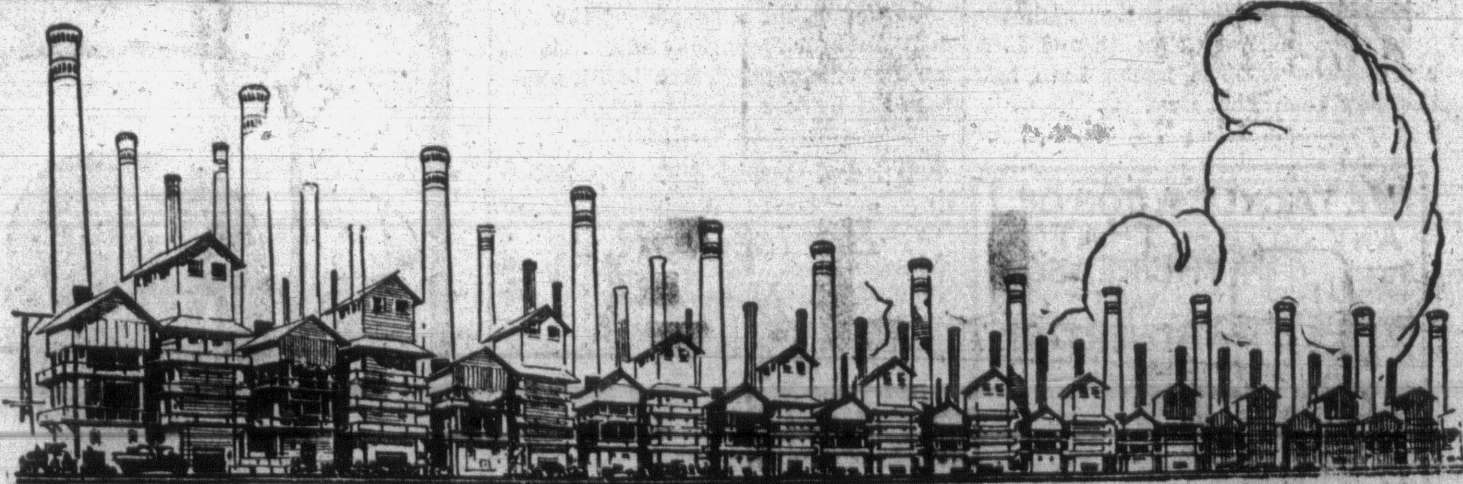

THE TEXAS COMPANY, always active and aggressive in the development of high grade petroleum products, now offers the American motoring public a new gasoline with a combination of qualities never before attained in a motor fuel.

It is a product of perfectly balanced distillation range, more volatile, and vaporizes to a dry gas.

The new gasoline is made possible through the Holmes-Manley Gasoline Process, owned and controlled by The Texas Company, representing an investment of millions of dollars and many years' efforts of refinery experts.

The new and better Texaco Gasoline has all the good qualities of any gasoline or motor fuel, regardless of price. It contains no chemicals. It needs none. Over two million barrels of this new product are now on hand.

Stop at the first Texaco pump you see. All tanks and pumps now supplied with the new product. Fill with Texaco Gasoline; and Texaco Motor Oil, the clean, clear, golden oil, known everywhere for its quality, full body and purity. You will note with pleasure the improved operation and condition of your engine.
